Daniel Kitchen grew up on his family's Registered Holstein farm in Danville, Pennsylvania. There he took a large interest in quality cattle, specifically, Red & White Holsteins. He has owned and developed numerous red and white and black and white All Pennsylvania's and All-American nominations over the years. He continues to be very active in the showing industry, fitting and working shows and sales throughout the United States. Daniel has judged more than 10 youth showmanship and fitting contests and several type shows since graduating from The Pennsylvania State University in 2020. Throughout his undergraduate career, he was active in 4-H and collegiate judging contests. He was the high scoring individual and member of the winning team at the All-American Collegiate Judging Contest and then went on to be the second place team at World Dairy Expo. Daniel now resides in Lancaster County Pennsylvania. He works in sales for Zook Ag Nutritional Products, coaches dairy quiz bowl and tends to a few show heifers.
